Darling:

I was out for a while last night and it was good to come home and find your telegram waiting. I missed you last night as I did all day yesterday and so far today. I will peep up I know, which makes me very happy. I just got back from Peggy's. She is in bed with summer flu, and is miserable. She tried to get me to talk about you, but all my answers were vague, I didn't say a word beyond answering her questions. She is furious with me, but it is fun.

Tomorrow I am to be up at 4:00 A.M. an untidy hour for anything. I will be in Oklahoma about Friday afternoon and am hoping to find a letter from you. I wish I could call you every hour and see you on the odd ones.

I am really ready to go to work again with a zest I haven't had for about a year. Please help me hope that I will get to stay at Hill for another year. This will mean that I can see you for a couple of days in the late winter and another couple in the fall.
I wish that there was some way for you to take a trip west. Haven would come with you. I love you very.

It rained all day yesterday and today I haven't had a chance to get out for any length of time.
Mother hasn't been able to get a cook so I am eating much more than I should. She is one of the better cooks, and I am getting still fatter.
This business of staying half on & half

Of the proverbial wagon is a good thing. I have had two drinks in two days. I expect to stop altogether as soon as I get to Sil. There will be a number of very surprised citizens when this word gets found out.

I didn't break my date with the little girl last night, but it was one of the shortest dates on record. I stayed exactly an hour then took off down the river to see some old friends. It was a delightful visit except that I missed you, turned up nose, red hair and all the rest. It is disturbing to find myself comparing every girl I meet with you.

I have played my new G & S records twice, and am learning more and more of the music. They are making the trip west with me.

I have even been reading some poems.
You do the queerest things to me. I expect any day to start writing them.
The fall and winter evenings will be extraordinarily full this season, what with writing to you, reading things you like, and just thinking about you. I am wishing that you could have come on down with me on Sunday.

It is impossible for me to write on the train, so you won't hear from me again until Monday. By that time I will be full into work again.
I am overflowing with plans and programs and hope that they will work out. Please darling write to me often. You are two behind now and I want so much to hear from you. I love you, and would like to know how you are.

all my love
Gordon.
